In the Fenian Convention yesterday, John Sayage resigned the position of Chief Executive, but the Convention refused to accept it. A report was made showing that a proposition had been made that General O'Neill and the Fenian Senate co-operate with the Convention in effecting a union of the two branches of the Brotherhood, and that General O'Neil's absence from the city prevented any definite action. A resolution was adopted that the committee communicate directly with General O'Neil by telegraph, and state that at noon on Monday the committee look for his presence or final answer as to his willingness to confer on the subject of union. The Paraguayan War. One of the steamers of the regular mail line between Rio Janerio and this port arline between Rio Janerio and this port arrived last evening. Advices from Rio Janiero are to the 8th inst.

The tactics of the Allied forces in attempting to reduce the Paraguayan garrison of Humaita by starvation had been entirely successful. The Paraguayans held out to the last moment, and on the 24th of July, when their stores were exhausted, evacuated the position. The allied forces marched in next day. Two hundred and fifty cannon and a large quantity of ammunition, small arms, &c., which the Paraguayans were compelled to abandou, were captured.

The retreating Paraguayaus were The retreating Paraguayans were pursued and four thousand of them cut off from the main body and surrounded in El Grau Chaco, they then formed a line of battle and in answer to a demand to surrender, emphatically refused. Then five of the Brazilian iron-clads forced their way through the obstructions, passed the batterles on the river Paraguay, and joined the fleet in the bombardment of the position of President Lopez at the mouth of the Tebegura. Marshal Caxias, the allied commander, was also advancing his troops on Lopez from the land side.

As the guns of the allied fleet command all routes of retreat, it was expected the Paraguayans would soon be forced to surrender the position. It was reported the Paraguayans had evacuated the important defensible town of Timbor. In view of all these advantages gained by the allies the
